Leicester City’s Museum of Science & Technology and home to 4 massive Wolf Compound Beam Engines built by Gimson of Leicester in the 1890’s.

This is an abbreviated list of the events at The Abbey Pumping Station when one or more of the beam engines will be in steam and available for public viewing. Please refer to the full events list for more details of each event and as to whether you need to pre-book for a full tour of the Beam Engine House. Due to fire Safety issues the numbers of visitors allowed into the Beam Engine House at any one time is restricted.

To help cover the cost of running the massive beam engines there is an admission charge to the museum on these running days. Please see the full events list for the actual charge for any given event.
